Music venue could face the bulldozers

Housing developers win appeal to build on site of The Square

By William Mata

THE Square may now be demolished after a housing developer won a landmark appeal against Harlow Council.

The music venue closed in December after Circle Housing pushed forward with plans to bulldoze buildings in the Fourth Avenue site to build 69 proper-

Town Hall blocked the move in January and venue owners SquareOne Entertainment elec-ted in May to refurbish and reopen, welcoming bands such as Chas and Dave back to perform. Meanwhile Ian Christmas, of Circle Housing, appealed the council's decision to the Government's Planning Inspectorate, who ruled last week that planning permission should be granted.

Disappointed

Councillor Danny Purton, port folio holder for environment, said: "We are disappointed by the Planning Inspector's decision to grant planning permission to Circle Housing.

"We turned down the application for good reasons, not just because of the lack of affordable housing and parking (in Circle's plan) but because it would result in the loss of The Square. We fought hard to maintain that position and contest the appeal.

He said Town Hall remained committed to fighting the decision and that his department will review the full appeal before deciding what move to take next.

It could be challenged in the High Court but such a move could be costly with no guarantee of success. SquareOne took control of the venue in 2008 and will hold meetings to discuss their next Square is Harlow's best known nusic venue and has helped launch the careers of bands such as Coldplay, Blur, Feeder and Muse in its 35 year history. Unless challenged, Circle will now construct flats and houses of three to 13 stories on the site of the former YWCA Hostel, which includes The Square.

ously that we would support the development plans if they were adjusted to address the issues raised by Harlow Council.

"However, this is not the case and Circle is offering the town nothing in compensation for the loss of community provision.

"We are looking to continue talks with Harlow Council, which have been positive, and are work ing with the Music Venue Trust, a national organisation committed to protecting the UK's grassroots music venues.

"We understand there are a lot of concerned members of the community and our aim is to have some positive news and a plan of action to share publicly at an open meeting at The Square on Friday, October 21.

"Details of this will appear on ww.thesquareharlow.com"

The Planning Inspector wrote: "The music venue is a commercial enterprise and as such I find it does not enjoy preservation protection under local plan policies "No evidence is before me to suggest that alternative and available premises do not exist in the vicinity."

The inspector added that he was not satisfied with the argument that adequate affordable housing would not be provided.

A Circle Housing spokesman said: "We welcome the decision to allow for redevelopment of the site to provide much needed new Southern Way, Harlow, Which hosted a BUPA Healthcare party. Bradley Casey, 21, formerly of Palmers Way, Cheshunt, pleaded not guilty to manslaughter charges at Chelmsford Crown Court and said his actions were in self-defence.

The men had taken cocaine at the party and had left the venue with colleague Stephen Boyce. Yesterday, Casey told the court an argument broke out as they were looking for a taxi to head into Harlow town centre, during which Mr Wareham threatened Casev said: "He looked serious, I was worried. I was a bit shocked, to be honest.

"Shortly afterwards, he lifted his right arm up and put his cigarette between my lips, twisting it with his hand.

"My head went back, my right arm just hung there. My hand came round in a swinging action and caught him on the chin.

Earlier the court heard, he told police he "panicked" afterwards and ran off.

Out cold

Prosecutor Peter Clark told jurors it was "a single blow to the face causing him to fall straight backwards, cracking his head on the pavement, knocking him out cold".

An ambulance took Mr Wareham to Princess Alexandra Hospital before transferring him to Queen's Hospital, Romford. His injuries were non-survivable.

Mr Clark said: "People were called to his bedside and he died on December 13."

Casey, who now lives in of Castle Street, Thetford, claimed that he acted in self-defence.

Mr Clark continued: "However, he had also told a friend: 'I cannot go to prison because my girlfriend is pregnant'. Why would he think he would be going to prison if he acted in selfdefence?

GLIMPSE OF THE FUTURE: How Public Health England's Harlow building could look in 2024

Public invited to view latest plans for PHE

Exhibition opens to reveal vision for world class science hub

By William Mata

PUBLIC Health England's momentous move into Harlow is a stage nearer with latest plans for their science hub unveiled.

At a three-day public exhibition, PHE chiefs are detailing progress made after then-Chancellor George Osborne announced a £400m takeover of the Pinnacles site last year.

Tim Harry, the Science Hub programme developer, said at a preview event yesterday: "This is going to be a world class facility that is right up with the best but we need to engage with the community and we have been looking at comments and feedback."

PHE will transfer facilities from Colindale and Porton Down to the New Frontiers Science Park in Coldharbour Road, Harlow, which has been empty since GlaxoSmithKline vacated in 2014.

The national body works alongside the NHS to improve the public's health and wellbeing.

In Harlow PHE would focus on medical research, shaping government initiatives and media campaigns.

Work is likely to include developing a treatment for the Ebola virus and surveying health concerns such as tuberculosis.

The second public exhibition will be held from 3pm to 8pm today and tomorrow and from 10am to 2pm on Saturday at the Science Alive part of Harlow Leisurezone in Second Aven-

Question

It follows a previous three-day showcase where more than 300 people in May raised questions.

Dr Harry continued: "The biggest question was about jobs and oppor-tunities, and that is a real win win for us and the town.

'I've lost £510 and I don't even have a wedding dress now'

Bride-to-be one of many caught out by D and Q liquidation

By William Mata

BRIDES to be are fearing for their big day after Harlow shop D and Q Weddings entered liquidation.

The shop, which traded in the Harvey Centre, sold and hired out wedding dresses and outfits for proms

A message on its website read simply: "With regret we have entered into liquidation."

Lisa Latham, 42, of Arkwights, is vorried she may have lost £510 which she has paid in instalments towards a dress she ordered, which had an £800 price tag.

The mother of five is due to marry partner of ten years Brian Burkett in Mary Magdalene Church in July but fears both the wedding dress and her money are gone.

She said: "In April I chose my dress and paid £106. I made further payments and was due to carry on, but that was until they put a sign in their window saying they had gone into liquidation.
"I was absolutely gutted. I did not know until I saw a Facebook post.

Unlikely

"I contacted the firm that deals with the liquidation, but as I paid on both cash and credit I am highly unlikely to get all my money back.

"I paid £510 and they did not even order it. I just want a dress.

Findlay James, an insolvency practitioner, is currently processing claims of D and Q customers but Miss Latham said she did not expect to be in this position with a trusted town centre shop.

"It's not a market stall and I trusted that shop," added Miss Latham, who is not currently employed.

"From what I am hearing they have not ordered any for some time. I am luckier than some who have lost thousands and thousands

£1.5m railway investment

By William Mata

COMMUTERS have been promised a more comfortable journey, thanks to a £1.5 million invest-ment from Abellio Greater Anglia.

The Dutch firm – criticised recently for delays and cancellations – has upgraded 60 carriages on the London Liverpool Street to Cambridge line, which serves Harlow, Hertford East and Bishop's Stortford stations.

Passengers can now enjoy new seat covers, flooring, signage and interior painting, while first-class customers will appreciate new carpet trims.

However, there was a negative response to the news on social

Emz Minxy Pixie Raven posted on Facebook; "How about instead of new seat covers you make the trains run on time and stop cancelling trains. Oh and actually tell passengers the real reason for delays and cancellations instead of giving 5 different reasons each

"I think the best reason for a delay I ever heard was 'too many people using the trains' I mean seriously?!"

Reliability

Jason Gore wrote that he "would rather More trains and Greater reliability than a make over", while Diane Healey said: "I think they need to replace the trains with new ones, it's a waste of money just replacing the seat covers!

"There are always cancellations, then trains are terminated because of mechanical faults. This is the forgotten line. Travel on any other line and the trains are so different and so much better!"

All trains refurbished are the older Class 317/5 model, and works were completed at the Clacton-on-Sea depot.

Abellio has recently won a new contract to run the West Anglia route for the next nine years.

Andrew Goodrum, Abellio cus-tomer service director, said: "As part of the nine-year franchise, we will replace our entire fleet of trains with 1,043 brand new car-

Have you spotted your son's homework on the table after he's left for school and been unable to travel there?

Modern struggles like these may now be a thing of the past thanks to delivery service What Can I Get You? which has started in Harlow and Roydon. Lee Nicolaou, 22, of Morley Grove, Harlow, launched the business last week after spotting a gap in the market and his phone has not stopped ringing.

"We deliver from all the places that do not offer it," he said.

"It's like a personal assistant service. If you need something taking to town to return, or you need a piece of school uniform delivering, we can do that too.'

Primarily operating through a Facebook page and by mobile phone, Mr Nicolaou hopes to have an app and a website running

Orders from Nando's and there is nowhere that offers a McDonald's, restaurants which do not deliver, are the top orders from the team of two drivers who can also buy shopping and cigar-

Mr Nicolaou said: "It has been really busy since our official launch, personally I was working 24 hour days. But it has been going really well. "When I first started I went into

Nando's three times in one day and the woman there was saying

'cor, you're hungry!'
"I explained and they were really helpful. The prices do not get altered at all."
What Can I Get You? charges customers the price of the order plus a £5 delivery charge for all purchases of less than £25.

All orders of more than £25 will have a delivery fee of ten per cent of the order price.
Mr Nicolaou has a background in marketing, a career which still occupies much of his time during quieter trading hours.

He continued: "I know many people are often thinking I could really enjoy a Ben and Jerry's but same day service and I thought this would be a real opportun-

He added: "I also aim to cut down drink driving in the area by allowing people a service that will drop it to them, and at the same time deliver them snacks and food. I am hoping that this will keep drunk people from ventur-ing out for booze and potentially being loud on the streets around neighbours and causing any trouble.

"My personal licence to sell alcohol will be available in the next few weeks but for now we are supplying food, shopping and essentials every evening and all weekend."

Along with a third driver, Mr Nicolaou is hoping to operate in Hertford, Sawbridgeworth and Bishop's Stortford too. He even hopes that customers can one day make an order by texting just an emoji.

Eight-year-olds looking at porn on the internet

By Sam Meadows

CHILDREN as young as eight are viewing pornography online, a new book reveals.

And its author, Vanessa Rogers, has serious concerns about the effects this is having on the way young people form relationships later in life

The issue became a concern for Vanessa, who lives in Hertford, as she began encountering more and more young women and girls who have issues with their bodies.

Concern

That concern led to We Need To Talk About Pornography, which is aimed at helping teachers create an "open dis-cussion" about adult material.

"One of the big differences I noticed, probably in the last five years, is the issue of body hair," she said.

"There has been a rise in the fashion of very young girls having the kind of waxing that you would usually see in a

"I thought that was interesting, and I found these children are increasingly influenced by porn."

The research backs up Vanessa's view. A study released yesterday by Girlguiding found 61 per cent of seven-to 21-year-old girls surveyed felt happy about their bodies - compared to 73 per cent in 2011.

Of the 11- to 21-year-olds, 80 per cent

said they were made to feel their appearance was the most important

CURIOUS: Children as young as eight are accessing pornography online thing about them, 66 per cent felt they were not pretty enough and 61 per cent felt they needed to be perfect.

Vanessa credited these changes to pornography, saying the internet made it far easier for teenagers and even younger children to access adult material.

"Some adults say, 'Yeah, it's a rite of passage'," she said.
"But go back to the 80s and 90s when most of the parents were young, and

"They say, 'Well, nothing, really.

Maybe a dirty mag that you passed around with your friends'.

"What has really changed is what has reany changed a access. My concerns are if you have seen everything by the time you're 14, how does that actually impact on your ideas of a positive relationship?"
She added: "Lots of girls tell me they watched it to see how they have sex. The boys said they were looking at it for titillation.

"But there was an expectation that you would expect a partner to do these Vanessa also had concerns about the prevalence of sex in mainstream TV shows and films.

"For the first time, we had a couple having sex on national TV (Sex Box on Channel 4)," she said.

"Where has that line gone of what's OK and what's not? You see it on Hollyoaks, Towie. There's Love Island, where they are split off with a partner and then after ten minutes you are having sex.

"What message does that send?"

Vanessa said parents and schools had to take on the subject proactively to help their children build better rela tionships.

She explained: "This kind of education isn't statutory. Schools have to teach the basics of sex and reproduction. You have to get consent from parents to join the rest.

"We are lucky we have some schools that do some excellent PSHE programmes in Hertfordshire.'

Reason

She added: "Some parents think telling children about it is more likely to make them do it. For some, it's a cultural or faith reason.

"Others just feel really uncomfortable themselves.

"The message we are sending is this is like drugs. It's a risk.

"Your child may or may not get involved, but parents can really make a difference by approaching it and saying, 'That's not really what happens in real life'."

We Need To Talk About Pornography is available now and costs £22.99

Having frank discussions the way to go

FRANK and open discussions about pornography are the best way to teach your children about adult material, according to

Rowan Davies, a spokesman for the organisation, said it was important for parents to play a role in educating their children about sex and relationships.

She said: "Few parents enjoy broaching the topic, but the harsh truth is that if you don't talk to your children about sex and porn, and the difference between them, someone in Silicon Valley who has made billions selling adult material will do it for you.

"Mumsnet users are hugely in favour of compulsory sex education in all schools, covering even the most difficult topics – but parents have to step up, too. One piece of advice is to have little chats when the opportunity arises, rather than a single big anxious, fraught Vanessa Rogers, the author of We Need To Talk About Pornography, said the taboo surrounding the issue needed to be lifted.

"Stop pretending it isn't happening and be curious as to what your children are doing," she

"When something comes up on TV or the news, use them as a way in to talk to your children and to give them good advice. A lot of people feel very embarrassed about it. I've lost the embarrassment because I've talked about it for four years, but I can certainly understand it."

Richard Rogers, the Cabinet member responsible for children's services at Hertfordshire County Council, said the authority was working with schools.

"Schools have regular training on safeguarding, and we provide help to deliver a quality PSHE curriculum, which includes education on safe sex and healthy relationships," he added.

Newlywed shaken after purse is taken

By Sam Meadows

A HAIRDRESSER went through a whirlwind of emotions when her purse – containing wedding gifts and cash – was stolen.

Rachel Bowen, from Harlow, was locking up at Attitudes Hair and Beauty on Hoddesdon High Street, where she works, when she was approached by a man in his

He asked if he could go into the shop as his mother had left her walking stick there earlier in the day, and then distracted her and plucked her purse from her bag.

This contained £200, the 26-year-old's day's takings, and a range of gift cards given to her and her childhood sweetheart, Luke, on their wedding day in July.

Vouchers

Mrs Bowen, who lives in Markwell Wood, said: "I am just so angry and annoyed. You go and do a day's work and he has taken it.

"It had wedding vouchers in there, as well. "I'm angry, but also relieved, because it could have been much

Bowen's mum, Eldridge, 44, who lives in Hod-desdon, said the man had later been seen, and caught on CCTV, in

The Star pub in the town.
"Rachel is just really angry," she said. "She is quite relieved in the sense that she was on her own and it could have been worse. She is very, very shaken up.'

She added: "We are heart-broken for her. She works hard for her money.

"It has shaken her to the core, the fact that he has her personal details."

Hertfordshire Constabulary confirmed the incident had taken place and was being investig-

Only four will be rented out

I HAVE recently read in the Harlow Times that after 20 long years of waiting the latest set of plans are available to view for the redevelopment/ refurbishment of Prentice Place.

That must make it at least five sets that have been produced since the initial meeting that told me and many others, some now passed, that the work was going to start. Let's hope it does this time.

However, what concerns me more is that at the current time only four properties out of the sixteen available in Prentice Place will be for the council to rent. Those homes have been empty for years at a cost to the council in maintenance of the area and the security of the homes. Add that to the loss of rent and council tax and you can see why the residents of Potter Street would be angry. It will be like Church Langley all over again.
The residents that I have spoken to laughed with contempt at this current position and said that after "20 years of mucking about in Prentice Place the residents will be short changed again." I hope our local councillors can act now to change this current position in order to show the people waiting for council homes that they will not be let down again by their elected representatives.

■ INSURANCE

How can this

Thompsons told us due to the holiday being cancelled 14 hours into their eight week cancellation period, I would lose half my monies. I have now claimed on my holiday insurance and find there is a £60 excess to pay on the claim and I had to supply what you would call a doctors note which I have be charged £50. I'm not sure if all surgeries charge this so now I am out of pocket due to no fault of mine to the tune of £110.

How can this be fair when everyone has to have insurance to go abroad and may never make a claim, so I say another insurance rip off.

Thanks for helping wife

WE would like to thank the residents of Commonside Road, Harlow, for the help they gave after the incident on August 9, when my wall was demolished and bricks were moved by neighbours from the pavement to my driveway.

I was in hospital at the time and the help given to my wife was greatly appreciated. Jean & Dave Roberts

POLICE

More resources to do the job

I ATTENDED the Public Meeting with Roger Hirst The Essex Police and Crime Commissioner and found it profoundly depressing for the following reasons.

The Essex Police precept is only 42p per person per day -compared to the National average of 53p. Essex are the 3rd lowest spending authority per head of population.

Essex has the fourth lowest number of officers at 2.9 per 1,000 of the population

Essex has second lowest number of PCSOs (second only to the City of London) at 0.14 per 1,000 of the population.

In Harlow we now have only 7 PCSOs to cover the whole town at one time there were 35

While the Commissioner's plan talks about more "Visible Policing" and a "Crack down on anti-social behaviour", arguably this can only be achieved if there are the resources to do the job.

SCHOOL TIME

Two hours of enrichment

I ENCOURAGE parents across Essex and Hertfordshire to join a new campaign I helped to create: Parents and Teachers for Excellence. The campaign is designed to spread understanding of what makes for great local schools.

Every parent worries about how their children are doing at school and about the quality of their children's school. GCSE and A-level results tell parents something – so does the school's Ofsted rating – but what else can they look for? Generally speaking, the best schools have four things in common. The first is excellent behaviour – a result of clear, consistent and transparent behaviour policies that children, parents and the school all sign up to. The second is that great schools teach what is known as a "knowledge-based" curriculum. This puts an emphasis on learning lots of information about a subject, rather than worrying excessively about the "skills" needed to dig out that information in the first place

And the learning of knowledge is helped by regular assessment be fair?

I, LIKE most people, brought holiday insurance which I now have had to use as my wife was advised not to fly as she needed to go into hospital for an operation.

Town is braced for hold-ups as roadworksstart

Temporary 30mph limit on A414 stretch as upgrades to footway and verges begin

By William Mata

MOTORISTS are expected to face traffic on the Harlow A414 when preliminary roadworks begin next month.

Essex County Council has confirmed improvement works will start in October with temporary traffic signals, speed limits and directions to be installed.

Initial works will focus on utility diversions in the footway and verges on the northern side of Edinburgh Way in Harlow before more extensive work begins next

The A414 between Cambridge Road, River Way and Station Approach will all be affected. One lane of traffic will be maintained in both directions throughout the majority of the works. A 30mph temporary speed limit will be imposed along the stretch. Constructors will also install restrictions for turning

More of the road may be taken over during off-peak hours and eekends.

Hall's Highways County department has placed warning signs along the road and sent letters to residents and businesses in the vicinity.

In a statement the county council detailed the extent of future plans which are scheduled to begin next year. These works will:

■ Create a dual carriageway along Edinburgh Way between Cambridge Road and River Way roundabouts,
■ Upgrade the A414 Cambridge

Road roundabout to include a dedicated left-turn lane from the south to the west along the A414 ■ Improve traffic signals at the East Road junction with Edinburgh Way, maintaining a crossing point on the A414 for pedestrians and cyclists

With the exception of East Road, vehicles that access premises on Edinburgh Way will be prohibited from turning right due to the new central reservation. Vehicles at the end of East Road junction will be able to turn in both directions at the traffic signals.

On the Star's Facebook page the news received a mixed response from readers.

Ashlev Cullen added: "It can't et any worse can it?"

But Vicky Holland wrote: "Oh

joy. It's going to be a pig to get anywhere in town and then we will have the new M11 junction to look forward to."

Square deal struck for young actors

YOUTH theatre project Livewire has expanded into a new venue in Harlow's spiritual home of music The Square

The company has been established in the town for 15 years and offers a weekly music programme for young people in Year 9 and above and also drama for students in Year 11 and above

The Square, in Fourth Avenue, has started hosting Livewire every Tuesday evening from 7pm to 9pm with a focus on music composition. Classes will culminate in a show in December.

Livewire also currently holds classes at Burnt Mill Academy in Harlow

Sam Ashford, creative director, said: "We've been together for 15 years now with a large membership of young people looking to be creative and do something positive.

"The opportunity has arisen to put on a weekly workshop at The Square which, due to our past performances there, feels like a natural step.

"The Square gives us a new platform and a chance for our musicians and actors to work together throughout the year and not just in the holidays.

"We are unbelievably excited to link up with such a prestigious place that is the cornerstone of our town."

Adam Smith, The Square

promoter, added: "They fit in perfectly with the ethos of The Square

"The Square has been committed to supporting local talent since its inception, and to have a youth project that concentrates on composition ticks all the boxes for us."

Staff trained to help abused

Campaign to combat domestic violence

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

VICTIMS of domestic abuse can find help in more places than ever in Harlow thanks to a new sticker initiative.

Through the J9 scheme more than 100 staff at public and voluntary services in West Essex have received training to spot signs of abuse and point sufferers in the right direction for help.

Harlow Council's Civic Centre

Harlow Council's Civic Centre and Princess Alexandra Hospital have pledged support by placing pink J9 stickers on their entrances to let residents know staff can be approached.

The initiative is facilitated by domestic abuse charity Safer Places, which is based in Bush House, Harlow, in partnership with Town Hall and PAH.

Harlow councillor Emma Toal said: "The partnership has seen a fantastic take up to its offer of free training to help build up a network of support for local people across the town.

"Many victims of domestic

"Many victims of domestic abuse, both women and men, suffer in silence and are often afraid to turn to others for support.

Businesses in Harlow are also encouraged to sign up for J9 training which can be provided in the lead up to Domestic Abuse Awareness Week in November.

ness Week in November.

J9 is named after Cornish woman Janine Mundy who was killed by her estranged husband while he was on police bail in 2003.

Professor Nancy Fontaine, deputy chief executive and chief nurse at PAH, said: "Domestic abuse is very common and affects the lives of millions.

"The aim of J9 is to raise awareness of domestic abuse and help people to seek the help they need, which is sometimes all we can do."

Joanne Majauskis, head of programmes and practice at Safer Places, added: "Many sufferers of domestic abuse are limited on where they can go, what they can do and who they can call.

"J9 provides a safe and secure opportunity for victims to disclose and having the J9 sticker on display shows the public it is safe to talk and there are people and materials available that can offer advice.

"Being in a J9 trained establishment victims are only one short phone call away from a full support system."

Businesses interested in free training to become a J9 contact should email contact@harlow.gov.uk.

PLANS MADE: Epping, which could see plenty of building work if plans are passed, as expected

Thousands of new homes for the area

By William Mata

THOUSANDS of homes could be built in Harlow under Epping Forest District Council's local Epping, East Hertfordshire, Uttlesford and Harlow councils will all soon submit plans for how the areas will develop over the next 16-17 years. All authorities have agreed that 51,100 homes need to be built across the region but EFDC's plan, which could be passed at a meeting tonight, leaves Harlow bearing the brunt with 16,100 properties.

And just weeks after Harlow councillors opposed any motion to build houses to the town's south and west, EFDC has proposed 1,000 homes be built at West Sum-

This is added to 3,900 at Harlow's north, 1,000 at Latton Priory, 1.100 at West Katherines, 750 at Harlow's East and 50 at Riddings Lane.

Motivation

Councillor Danny Purton, Harlow Council portfolio holder for environment, said: "I don't think the choice is made with a political motivation.

"We have got to consider our response to the plan. It is a technical process carried out by con-

"Obviously they examine all the sites put forward and consider each site's sustainability, viability and deliverability and a lot of other factors. These are the sites they have identified as the best."

After councillors blocked Cllr Purton's motion to consider Harlow's west and south for development, members are looking for other alternatives to put for allowed extra time to complete its final plan which is expected within the next few months.

Mr Purton added: "We need to take into account the full council's decision. We need to consider the future of the town and our policy is to grow the town.

"Harlow is the largest of the areas and it's only natural it will attract more of the development than the sites around it."

EFDC started developing the plan in 2010 and has carried out mass consultations.

The priorities identified for proposals are protecting and enhancing green spaces, encouraging growth of local jobs and businesses and providing facilities for the community. There is also special consideration to preserve green areas but if all plans are passed. Epping Forest's green belt is set to shrink.

If, as expected, the Conservative council pass the plan, it will be submitted to central government for formal approval next year.

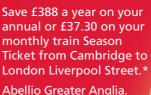

A public consultation is expec ted to run on the plan between October 31 and December 12. Councillor John Phillip, planning policy portfolio holder at EFDC, said: "We want to keep this place somewhere green.

"Therefore we want to make sure this development goes in places we want it to go.
"If we don't have a local plan development could go anywhere in the district. Look at this as a way of protecting our district for the future for us and for our children to enjoy.

GOING UNDERGROUND: A mystery group wants to get people talking on the tube

Is it such a good idea to alk to other travellers?

YOU may have been told not to talk to strangers but a mystery group is encouraging more people to talk on London Underground.

Badges bearing the message 'Tube chat?' are being distributed along the network with a card explaining that wearers would be willing to be approached for a conversation.
But despite the message carrying branding of Transport for London the organisation said the idea was not theirs. In fact no individual or group has claimed responsibility for the initiative.

Conversation is famously muted on the tube and the move could be to inspire a more friendly public transport network.

However, the idea has not been well received on social negatively about Tube Chat. A Transport for London spokesman was equally unimpressed. She said: "It's definitely not something we have created. "We are trying to get in touch with the people behind them as we never allow people to use our branding unless they have our permission.

Academy's creativity on display at art exhibition

PARENTS flocked to Stewards Academy when it threw open its doors twice in a week

The school, in Parnall Road, Harlow, welcomed visitors to the Year 11 GCSE art and photography exhibition which gave students an opportunity to demonstrate their creativity with each showing two pieces of their work

The exhibition included work from three students in Isobel Lacey, Filip Kusnir and Bradley Leathers, who all scored 100 per cent in their coursework and exam in the summer.

Work was also on show by A level students from St Mark's West Essex Catholic School who are taught by the art teachers at

Fines for pair who dumped rubbish

Council's tough stance on the furniture fly-tippers

By William Mata

TWO people have been prosecuted by Harlow Council for dumping rubbish in the town.

Both offenders were fined hun-dreds of pounds after appearing at Chelmsford Magistrates Court last week as Town Hall continue to take a tough stance against the McLean, of Mallows Green, Harlow, admitted dumping rubbish, including furniture items, outside her house on council land to officers in April when approached.

Police informed her that failure to clear the rubbish would result in a fixed penalty notice (FPN) being issued.

The next day officers found items had not been moved and issued an FPN.

The FPN remained unpaid at the time the matter went to court. In her absence McLean was fined £440 and ordered to pay costs of £180 and a £44 victim surcharge.

Police also issued Sebastian Igrets, of Barley Croft, Harlow, with an FPN after he failed to remove rubbish dumped in a garage area near his home.

Following the non-payment he pleaded guilty before magistrates and was issued with a fine of £240 and ordered to pay £180 court costs and a £30 victim surcharge.

Both cases were brought forward by Town Hall under Section 87 of the 1990 Environmental Protection Act.

Irresponsible

Councillor Emma Toal, portfolio holder for youth and community, said: "These prosecutions help to show the council takes unacceptable and irresponsible behaviour like this seriously.

"Dumped rubbish, fly tipping and littering is a constant issue in the town – but it is being challenged by the council.

"We should all want to maintain a clean environment for those who live and visit Harlow. Our officers do respond to reports of rubbish dumping and they will take action.

She continued: "Not only does dumping rubbish cause harm to

CRACK: Karl Wickham-Downes

Two year jail term for drug dealer

A MAN has been jailed after he took over the home of a vulnerable man and used it as a drug dealing base.

Karl Wickham-Downes, of Holt Close, Chigwell, was sentenced at Chelmsford Crown Court last week to two years behind bars. The 26-year-old was spotted leaving the Harlow property by Essex Police's Operation Raptor team on August 9.

Wickham-Downes fled but officers stopped and searched him in a nearby alleyway and discovered a plastic bag containing 84 wraps of crack cocaine and 28 wraps of heroin.
Police charged him with possession with intent to supply both class A drugs. He pleaded guilty to both offences and was guilty to both offences and was sentenced on September 29. His two year prison sentence for each offence will run concurrently. Operation Raptor is an initiative to detect and dismantle gangs who travel to Essex to deal drugs and cause violence.

PC Jack Etheridge said:

"Drugs wreck and ruin lives and we will use a variety of tactics to bring to justice those who carry

"Many people don't realise drug dealing gangs exploit and prey on the vulnerable in our community, taking over their homes as a base from which to deal. As well as enforcement activity, Operation Raptor is about working with our partner agencies who can offer support to those affected by gang criminality'

Stunning grace of Swam Lake at the Playhouse

> FTER a successful performance of Carmen, Amande Concerts is bringing another romantic tragedy to Harlow Playhouse this month.

But the mournful solos will be swapped for spellbinding dance as the more graceful side of Russian State Ballet and Opera House pirouette onto the stage for Swan Lake

And, as is customary with all Amande Concerts' productions, a live 30-piece orchestra will do justice to Tchaikovsky's famous score and set the perfect backdrop to the ballet.

Swan Lake will be performed for one night only at the Playhouse Square venue on Thursday, October 20. Released in 1877 to initial one of the world's most popular ballets.

The plot follows Odette, a princess turned into a swan by the villainous Von Rothbart. Odette turns back to her beautiful human form when love-interest Prince Siegfried is about to shoot

She reveals she is under a spell and can only be saved by a virgin prince who swears eternal fidelity to her. The Prince plans to propose at a ball at his castle but the plot thickens when Von Rothbart disguises his daughter as Odette and sends her to the ball too.

Swan Lake is a rollercoaster ballet which ranges from hope to despair and from terror to tenderness which has been enjoyed by generations.

Alexej Ignatow, tour coordinator for Amande Concerts, said: "We are constantly on the lookout for new challenges to ensure our opera and ballet audiences get a chance to experience a wide spectrum of various classic pieces.

"No experience is needed to enjoy these classics. Our sets and costume designs, as well as the informative programmes make the productions very accessible and most of all, enjoyable."

■ Tickets are on sale now and cost £31. For more information and bookings contact Harlow Playhouse box office on (01245) 431945 or visit www.playhouse harlow.com

Humorous play follows a community in crisis

UP IN ARMS: Cast rehearsal for Rearrange the Furniture

THOMPSON Promotions hugely engaging and relevant play Rearrange the Furniture brought to life the unlikely topic of the housing crisis.

Harlow writer and director Andrew Prangnell premiered his production at The Victoria Hall Theatre last week in front of large and appreciative audiences.

Set in a fictional London estate, the plot follows a group of residents who are threatened with having to move when a property company announces plans to buy out and redevelop their homes - selling them onto the wealthy elite who will never live in them.

Up in arms, the community rally against plans and enlist the help of a journalist. But the two-stranded plot also follows a property kingpin and his son – forever in his shadow, who have the help of a slimy councillor smelling their money.

A divided stage follows both plotlines and equally contrasts the rich and poor divide with working class anger and middle class snobbery boiling over to create a wonderfully explosive ending. Kyle Jaggers is a worthy lead as Tom, a noble man with a troubled past, who acts as leader of a residents group, Amy Jaggers, Ellie Darby-Prangnell and Molly Jenkins also bring attitude and humour to their meetings.

Company owner Jim Thompson is brilliantly vile as Councillor Drayton, but there is something of a cliché in how irredeemably evil the bad guys

Also a heavy use of innuendo humour borders on Up Pompei! standards and feels tired, while a personal revelation from Tom is too late to really pack an emotional punch.

But Rearrange the Furniture is heartfelt and at times highly entertaining. Probably the best play about the housing crisis any of the audience will ever

FILM GUIDEC TO

Thriller goes off the rails

KEEPING TRACK: Emilly Blunt stars as Rachel Watson in The Girl On The Train

ublished last year, Zimbabwean-born author Paula Hawkins' novel The Girl On The Train has become a literary sensation, selling in excess of 11 million copies worldwide.

As with Gone Girl, another taut thriller with a gasp-out-loud narrative twist, Hollywood came a-knocking.

Tate Taylor, director of the Oscar-winning civil rights drama The Help, was duly hired to shunt the book's setting from London to New York for this glossy film adaptation.

Erin Cressida Wilson's assured script retains a similar structure to the book, exploring tangled themes of motherhood, revenge and betrayal through the eyes of three women, who are unwittingly trapped in cycles of violence.

Using on-screen title cards to chart the fractured chronology, the film shifts perspectives between these flawed yet resourceful protagonists, while attempting to pull the wool over our eyes. It's an entertaining though not exactly pulse-quickening ride.

Rachel Watson (Emily

Blunt) has self-imploded following an acrimonious divorce from her cheating husband, Tom (Justin Theroux).

When she wakes from her drunken stupors, Rachel has alarming gaps in her memory and, on one occasion, she is covered in bruises and blood.

As a result of her intoxication, Rachel loses her job at a PR firm, which she conceals from her roommate Cathy (Laura Prepon) by taking her usual train each morning and sitting in the park with a bottle of spirits.

Fantasv

The journey takes her past her old house where Tom is now happily settled with his mistress Anna (Rebecca Ferguson) and their baby. The tracks also pass by the residence of neighbours Scott (Luke Evans) and Megan Hipwell (Haley Bennett), and Rachel fantasises about the couple's seemingly perfect relationship.

One morning, Rachel stares bleary-eyed out of the train window and glimpses Megan in a clinch with another man.

Megan subsequently vanishes and Detective

Sergeant Riley (Allison Janney) becomes interested in Rachel's hazy recollection, especially since the drunkard has no alibi for the hours leading up to Megan's disappearance.

Perhaps psychiatrist Dr Kamal Abdic (Edgar Ramirez) can help Rachel to unlock her subconscious. She will soon realise that some memories are best forgotten.

The Girl On The Train is a smart psychological potboiler anchored by a strong performance from Blunt as a self-destructive woman who is figuratively going off the rails in her darkest hour.

Unreliable narrators are far more tantalizing on the page than the big screen, and there are a couple of pivotal moments in Taylor's film, which tip the wink too early to characters' dark ulterior motives and personal ties.

Nevertheless, the picture chugs briskly down various dramatic sidings before arriving at a messy final reckoning that satisfies rather than surprises.

The gripping story of Brian Reader, Britain's most prolific, old-school crook

Branded 'The Master' and 'a Gentleman Thief' Brian is a true British crime character. Gang insiders, family, friends and detectives talk for the first time about Reader's six-decade career. The authors reveal the Hatton Garden gang's links to an unsolved gangland murder, bent cops, police supergrasses and an alleged establishment cover-up. The book also includes new details about Basil, dubbed 'The Ghost' after he became the only gang member to escape justice.

TRIO of 200 mile round trips to deepest London let me draw a couple of conclusions – one of them blindingly obvious, the other not so.

First; don't drive into London unless there really is no alternative. No matter when you approach the city that never sleeps, it will be traffic chaos. Take the train instead.

Second; do the trips in a Citroen C4 Cactus and the pain of a three hour grid lock will be comfortably lessened by the way it seems to use hardly any fuel.

Good to know there's some payback for the misery of a capital drive – I salute those poor commuters who do this every day and stay (relatively) sane.

At journeys' end, and with more than 800 test miles under its radials, the Cactus had averaged 64.1mpg. At one stage the trip computer nudged towards 70mpg but the relentless stop & surge of one traffic light after another eventually took its toll.

But, hey, enough of the practicalities; this is one car that's surely bought for much more than the fuel it saves. Like its looks, for instance.

Some cars are shaped to draw a reaction from onlookers, and the C4 Cactus is near the top of today's bunch (a space also occupied by the Kia Soul) and you will either admire Citroen's boldness, or ask 'please can you park it round the corner.'

Add the £250 worth of blue lagoon paint of the test car and you'll have a car that pulls nearly as many looks as the golden Lamborghinis that travelled as slowly as the Cactus in London but used rather more fuel.

Of course, it's the padded rubber Airbumps on front, back and side of the Cactus that add the final flourish. Designed to take the knocks of a supermarket car park (even if the very edges of the body remain vulnerable paint) they make the car as distinctive as almost anything on sale today.

Inside, the stand out looks are toned down a bit, but there's still an obvious desire to make things different. That means doors with pulls rather handles, big flat looking seats and a dashboard that sacrifices style to practicality, with a top hinged glovebox that means there is no room for a passenger air vent where it does the most good.

Citroen must also have concluded that a Cactus driver would need very little information about what's going on under the bonnet. So you're faced with a big digital speed reading, a small bar gauge for remaining fuel and nothing else.

Burrow past the looks and you have a pretty standard medium-sized hatchback that offers decent space front and rear and a boot big enough for a family weekend away.

The C4 Cactus range starts at £12,990 and tops out at a heady £20,495 and all of them share suspension that worries more about comfort than race track ability, which you may well feel is a good thing.

You'll be less admiring of a gearchange that felt as though there was development work left to do and back door windows that don't wind down but merely hinge open a little at the rear.

Standard fit satellite navigation on this Flair level car has a big, clear screen but took us a simply daft route on one expedition to the capital but was otherwise well behaved. Star, Thursday, October 6, 2016 HSH-EO1-S2 harlowstar.co.uk

DRIVE Mazda MX-5

By Enda Mullen

Y daughter often asks me if I won the lottery what car would I buy? The answer is of course several – that I would have different cars for different things - maybe a Ferrari for the sheer hell of it, along with something like a Range Rover offering a sublime mixture of luxury, comfort and practicality.

Depending on how long the list would get there's a very good chance a Mazda MX-5 would on it

Sure, there are far more extravagant, expensive and way more powerful two-seaters out there but there's something about the simplicity and purity of the MX-5 that makes it so appealing.

A few decades ago there were oodles of roadsters around, in fact British car-makers excelled at creating cars which delivered what to many was the purest driving experience one could wish for.

What could be better than whizzing around winding British B-roads with the roof down and the wind in your hair.

Sadly roadsters have become something of an endangered species – even MG don't make them any more – despite the Midland car maker's recent revival under Chinese ownership.

However, one could argue that perhaps one of the reasons roadsters no longer proliferate as they

AT A GLANCE

- VEHICLE: Mazda MX-5 2.0 SE-L Nav Price: £21,645
- Mechanical: 160ps, 1,998cc, 4cyl petrol engine driving rear wheels via 6-speed manual gearbox
- Max speed: 133mph
- O-62mph: 7.3 seconds
 Combined mpg: 41
- Insurance group: 29
 CO2 emissions: 161g/km
- BiK rating: 27%
- Warranty: 3yrs/60,000 miles

once did is down to the fact the Mazda MX-5 is just so good and has been for quite some time.

The MX-5 has been around in some form or other since 1989 and has always been much loved in the UK.

Although it's had a number of incarnations in that time, it's stayed true to the concept of being a small, light and fun to drive convertible.

The latest model is very much recognisable as an MX-5 though the traditional rounded styling has been replaced by a sharper and slightly more

The dimensions have also been altered slightly and it's shorter, lower and wider than its

On the inside it has a more modern feel with a dash and instrumentation that are very contemporary though also nod to traditional

As is often the case these days there's a wide choice of models with ten versions available to UK

There are two engines - a 129bhp 1.5-litre or a 157bhp 2.0-litre unit - and five trim levels available.

This 2.0-litre SE-L Nav model sits roughly in the middle of the range - prices start at £18,500 and top out at £24,295

The altered dimensions give the MX-5 even more of a go-kart feel than before. Sit in and you really do feel as if you are just a few inches off the

While there isn't huge room for manoeuvre in terms of seat adjustment the cabin still feels reasonably open and comfortable and I found it a pleasant place to be for pretty much any kind of iourney – long or short.

While the MX-5 has never gone down the fancy automatic folding metal roof route operating its canvas roof is an absolute breeze and it takes just a few seconds to put it up or down - and it can be easily done from the driver's or passenger's seat.

So what's it like to drive and how does it

The MX-5 is as agile and spirited as ever and offers an even more fun and exhilarating drive than its predecessor.

It's sharper, swifter and seems to go around the bends at speed with increased ease.

While a 1.5-litre powerplant no doubt makes for a fun drive, the extra potency of the 2.0-litre gives the MX-5 a bit of added bite that means it really can show a turn of pace and given the fact you're so close to the road heightens the thrill factor even

Add the benefits of rear-wheel drive and a super-smooth short changing gearbox into the mix and you have a car that really is a joy to drive – so much so you'll find yourself creating journeys that aren't really necessary, just for a chance to get behind the wheel.

How does an ordinary housewife become a notorious international criminal?

When Anne Darwin told the world and her family - that her husband, John, had disappeared while canoeing in the North Sea, her life changed forever. She had just lied to the police, the press, her friends and neighbours and her own sons. While her husband hid next door. Anne claimed the life insurance - then left with him to start a new life in Panama. For the first time, Anne opens up about her part in the scheme; her marriage, her harrowing time behind bars and the runaway train of lies that followed their plan to defraud insurance companies with the aid of a canoe.

'It felt like the right time to tell my own story, in my own words...

The gripping story of Brian Reader, Britain's most prolific, old-school crook

Branded 'The Master' and 'a Gentleman Thief' Brian is a true British crime character. Gang insiders, family, friends and detectives talk for the first time about Reader's six-decade career. The authors reveal the Hatton Garden gang's links to an unsolved gangland murder, bent cops, police supergrasses and an alleged establishment cover-up. The book also includes new details about Basil, dubbed 'The Ghost' after he became the only gang member to escape justice.

Awards night proves Harlow's got talent

Sports stars of all ages recognised with prizes

By Matt Storey

HARLOW'S sporting community gathered at the town's Civic Centre on Monday night for the Active Harlow Sports Awards

The awards were presented by international footballer Casey Stoney MBE, who has more than 100 caps for England Women, has captained her country and plays for Arsenal Ladies.

More than 60 nominations were received. The standard of nominations demonstrated the con-tributions that many volunteers put into the Harlow community to provide positive opportunities for people to participate in sport and people to participate in sport and physical activity. Stoney was delighted to be invited to the event, "It's import-ant to support grassroots sport where possible, and having lived in Harlow I jumped at the chance to attend this event," she said.

"It's really uplifting to meet so many local sporting heroes and heroines and to hear all of the successes and dedication put into sport by the many volunteers.

"Having played at international and national level I know how important it is to have access to high-quality facilities and dedic ated coaches to help you reach and fulfil your potential. "Harlow has a great range of sports facilities and a thriving community club scene. The town's past and present sporting achievements and its future potential is a real success story."

Paralympian

Richard Chiassaro was the highest profile athlete to pick up an award, the Paralympian winning disabled sports personality of the year.

Church Langley Community School picked up two awards, with David Stacey named coach of the year and the school named as the school, college or university of Alan Brooking received the unsung hero award for his involvement in Harlow Rugby Club, and the inspirational nominee of the year award went to Daniel Mckenzie, who is heavily involved in cycling in the town.

New tennis academy's a smash hit

A NEW elite tennis academy has launched at the Harlow Leisurezone, looking to help Essex youngsters develop their game in a way not seen anywhere else in the county.

The Ellesse Tennis Academy held its first session on Monday night and will be home to some of Essex's top youngsters over the winter.

Kirk Butler is the head coach at the academy and has been instrumental in getting it started. He believes his programme offers something that nobody else does.

"It's an elite academy for youngsters who want to become professional tennis players," explained Butler.

But it's not elite in the sense of money, it is affordable coaching and training for really motivated kids. Sometimes elite performance tennis is seen as a rich man's sport.

"So I worked out a while ago that there is a need for something like this, because tennis coaching is hampered by the time and effort it takes.

Fitness

"But this really isn't for everyone because it's tough. We concentrate on fitness as well as tennis, you've got to have a real desire to want to play tennis.

"There will be kids out there at tennis clubs who I don't know who are really good players and something like this will appeal to them.

"But I've also taken calls from parents about kids who I know, and I've had to say this isn't really for them.

"Harlow Leisurezone and Ellesse have been fantastic for us in getting this started. Ellesse are helping us with equipment and the Leisurezone really help us in providing courts on Monday and Friday nights."

Clare Perry, whose son Matthew Doe is one of the academy's young players, knows the academy isn't for the fainthearted.

"The training they do is tough. but I've been in and around tennis for a long time and I've not seen anything like this in the south-east.

The academy currently has sessions at the Leisurezone on a Monday and Friday night, and Butler is keen for anyone under the age of 18 who wants to get involved to get in contact with him on 07904081135

Boss: 'Players must take responsibility'

Hawks manager Chapman wants form to improve

By Matt Storey

DANNY CHAPMAN has called on his players to take responsibility if they want to stop their recent inconsistent form.

The Hawks were set to travel to Grays Athletic last night (Wednesday) before a trip to high-fly-ing Havant and Waterlooville on Saturday.

Harlow have won just once in their previous six games prior to the trip to Grays, including a heavy 4-0 defeat at Lowestoft Town last Saturday.

Despite recent poor form, he wants his side to make the trip down south full of belief.

"It's a tough place to go but they drew with Burgess Hill in the week who are below us in the league," Chapman said.

"It just shows that anyone is capable of beating anyone in this capable of Peating anyone in this league as I've said before.
"So we'll go there full of belief, faith in them to turn it around.

knowing that if we perform as I know we can, then we're capable of getting a result.

"It won't be an easy game but we've shown we can do it."

Chapman's side have conceded 14 goals in six games, keeping just two clean sheets so far this sea-son. The 41-year-old wants his whole side to take responsibility for the defensive struggles and prove that they've adapted to the higher standard.

Pinpoint

"It's not just the back four, we need to look at the whole team. I don't want to pinpoint it as being a back four problem," he added.

"I know they're good enough. [Ibrahima] Sonko has played in the Premier League, [Craig] Pope in the Football League and Layne [Eadie] has been with us for the last four years so he is more than aware of what we do. "We'll stick with them and put

"It's up to the players to take responsibility for their inconsistent performances.

"They know that what we do works when they are performing and they've let themselves down against Lowestoft and AFC Sudbury recently.

"It's about being consistent for 90 minutes at a time. I've spoken before about the players learning about this league and the fact you have to be on your game for 90 minutes. It's a better standard and they need to accept that and put it into practice."

He felt that the defeat at Lowestoft was the perfect example of this, bemoaning their second-half performance.

"We were by far the better side in the first 45 minutes on Sat-urday, but we conceded just after half-time and then capitulated nair-time and then capitulated and conceded three goals from silly individual mistakes. It's their responsibility to find that consistency."

FAITH: Danny Chapman is showing faith in players like Layne Eadie

GOLD MEDAL: Emma Nunn was

There's Nunn better than young Emma

JUDO: Emma Nunn, a student at Burnt Mill Academy in Harlow, has won gold at the British Judo London Area Green Belt and Below Open.

The event took place on September 24 at London's Sportsdock and the year eight student won all three fights in her U32kg weight category.

And she was delighted to pick up the gold medal: "My first fight was the most difficult as the opponent was the most technical. It's good to compete against new people from other clubs and I'm really pleased to have beat them all to win gold. "Judo is a fun sport, instead of kicking and punching it is more of a tactical sport. It teaches you self-defence and discipline. It's competitive but very safe." Nunn also competed in the 36kg and under weight category but did not pick up a medal.

She is a member of Bishop's Stortford Judokwai and Rush Judo Club and has been practicing judo since the age of six, and competing since eight.

Judo has allowed her to travel all around the UK to compete and she became the British Minor Champion in 2015

Week off for high-flyers

RUGBY: Last Saturday's trip to May and Baker was cancelled for Harlow Rugby Club, with the opposition pulling out of the league last week.

The Dagenham-based club lost numerous players over the summer months and after three heavy defeats decided to pull their first team out of the league.

It means Harlow go into this week's game with Southwold after a fortnight's rest, knowing that a win will see them leapfrog their opponents into the top three of the London North East Division Three table, despite playing a game less than more than half of the other sides.

Meanwhile, the Rams lost for the first time this season, going down 12-5 at Thurrock's third team. They remain third in Essex Merit League Division Three table and host struggling Upminster on Saturday.
